Dear Jackie,

Let me express my most sincere congratulations to you for receiving the Sean MacBride Peace Prize annual award, a well deserved recognition of your long-term activism as an advocate for the elimination of nuclear weapons.

Over the years that we have known each other, I have come to appreciate your dedication to sensitizing civil society and governments with high quality information about the inherent dangers of nuclear weapons both to international peace and security and to the environment, as well as your contributions to the many conferences you have been invited to speak at, inside and outside of the United Nations, including your participation in the latest United Nations Disarmament Conference in Saitama, Japan, in August of this year.

Please accept my warmest best wishes.
