FROM THE SCOURGE OF WAR

In the year 697 AD, the Synod of Birr (Ireland) enacted a law to protect women, youth, clergy and those in the protection of the church, in times of war. This law, Lex Innocentium (the Law of the Innocents), also known as Adomnán's Law after its author, Adomnán, Ninth Abbot of Iona, made it a crime to harm or kill these innocent non-combatants in war or military aggression. It has also come to be known as the First Geneva Convention and the Geneva Convention of the Gaels.

Given the horrendous, destructive and indiscriminate nature of modern warfare, with its ability to kill people in their millions, destroy the Earth and her beautiful and complex ecosystems, and threaten the future of humanity and the Earth herself, we have now written a new Lex Innocentium for our time, Lex Innocentium, 21st Century.

Lex Innocentium, 21st Century has been promulgated in response to

- the alarming rush to militarization worldwide, with its fear-funding propaganda,
- the shocking and inexcusable waste of resources (material, financial and intellectual) on the war system,
- and the abject failure of governments around the world to uphold and adhere to international humanitarian law.

This is a moral, bottom-up, soft-power, people's law that demands protection from the scourge of war for the innocent and the powerless throughout the world now and in the future, and for Planet Earth and all her varied and extraordinary ecosystems and living creatures.
